In 2010, the American Heart Association formally defined a construct of “cardiovascular health” in order to promote health and prevent disease in all Americans. Dr. Lloyd-Jones will review the subsequent research that has established the determinants, correlates, mechanisms, and outcomes of cardiovascular health across the lifespan.